Course Description: Will the rain ever avoid the events and days surrounding this race? One can only hope! The mighty Manatoc totems did their best at defending the venue from rain but once again the wet stuff popped into the forecast and northeastern Ohio received a light rain both Saturday and Sunday but avoided the huge storms that went both west and east of the venue. The rain never really broke the canopy of the trees and by mid day on both Saturday and Sunday the trail was completely dry and 100% dialed for racing. The trails were so dry leading into the weekend they soaked up water like a sponge. Bridges and roots were wet and slick both mornings but the single track remained in good shape in the morning and outstanding shape in the afternoon as everything dried out! The temperature was a refreshing 70 ish degrees.
